DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Applicant's election without traverse of Invention I, claims 1-7, in the reply filed on 1/17/06 is acknowledged. With regards to applicant's election of species it is noted that applicant has not distinctly and specifically pointed out the supposed errors in the species restriction requirement, the election has been treated as an election without traverse (MPEP § 818.03(a)).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Tapphorn et al. (US Patent # 6,915,964). Tapphorn et al. discloses a method of forming a substrate layer and in situ deposition of a metal layer on the substrate layer along with reactive materials to create an explosive mixture (column 13, lines 29-40). The substrate comprising silicon, the metal layer may comprise copper and may be reacted with a gas phase reactant. The metal layer may be deposited by sputtering.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

Art Unit: 3641

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 6 and 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Tapphorn et al. as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Garvick et al. (US Patent # 6,173,650).

Although Tapphorn et al. does not expressly disclose the method also comprising depositing an organic flyer layer on top of the primary explosive layer or forming a barrel in the substrate layer, Garvick et al. does. Garvick et al. teaches a method of making exploding foil initiator utilizing a substrate having a primary explosive formed thereon comprising depositing an organic flyer layer on top of the primary explosive layer and forming a barrel in the substrate layer. Garvick et al. and Tapphorn et al. are analogous art because they are from similar problem solving areas: microminiaturized devices. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to combine the method of depositing a flyer and forming a barrel in the substrate as taught by Garvick et al. with the method of forming a substrate and in situ deposition of metals and reacting the metals to form an explosive layer as taught by Tapphorn et al. The suggestion/motivation for doing so would have been to obtain a MEMS safety and arming system that was easier to manufacture as suggested by Tapphorn et al.
